Experiencing a data loss is a bad thing in our life and what we want to do mostly is to recover all the data; to get it back. Whether you can successfully recover your lost data "back" largely depends on the time since the loss/failure. The sooner done, the more can be recovered.

Choosing software that won't cause further damage increases the possibility of data recovery. There are a lot of choices for data recovery software, but some of them are untrusted and can even cause further damage to your device, which might result in permanent data loss.
